Chris Skinner

TITLE: Disclosure Risk, Decision Theory and Predictive Distributions

ABSTRACT: This talk will review the use of decision theory as a conceptual framework for statistical disclosure control, with particular emphasise on the role of different perspectives, e.g. of the agency and intruder, and on the distinction between disclosure risk and disclosure harm. The use of predictive distributions to represent disclosure risk will also be reviewed.