

We invite applications for

6 Doctoral Scholarships

with a maximum duration of 3 years, beginning January 1st, 2015

The Institute for Employment Research (IAB) and the School of Business and Economics of the University of Erlangen–Nuremberg have set up a joint doctoral programme in labour market research.

- The course programme promotes theoretical and empirical methods at an advanced level. Additionally, applicants are granted access to the excellent data resources (administrative and survey data) of the IAB on employment and social security.
- Doctoral students benefit from the professional research environment that enables them to apply their knowledge in academic and applied empirical research.
- We address outstanding graduates from economics, sociology or other social sciences who hold a master degree or diploma. Applicants are expected to submit a proposal addressing empirical and theoretical research questions in the field of labour market research or the development of the required statistical–econometric methods.
- The courses are held in English.

For further information on the programme and on the application procedure see www.iab.de/en/gradab
