Measuring and defining informal employment

Vladan Bozanic (Department for Labour Force Survey of the Statistical Office of the Republic of Serbia)

Using the 2008 Serbian Labour Force Survey and against an ILO conceptual background various ways of estimating the extent of informal employment in the Republic of Serbia will be shown. Around one quarter of total employment turns out to be informal, i.e. lacking social and legal protection. There will be room for discussing the methodology, the data, and the implications especially for countries that have been receiving migration from Serbia.

Vladan Bozanic is Head of the Department for Labour Force Survey of the Statistical Office of the Republic of Serbia.
