

Call for Papers

Dynamics of Low Wage, Low Pay, and Transfer Receipt

International Conference

Date:

November 15 - 16, 2013

Location:

Institute for Employment
Research (IAB),
Nuremberg, Germany

Background

In recent years the great recession and Euro crisis have affected national labor markets. In most countries, unemployment has risen. In some countries austerity policies put a break on wage increases and institutional reforms have supported the generation of extended low wage sectors. This directs new attention to the workings of national minimum income systems.

The conference will present international current research on trends and developments in the fields of low wage employment and transfer receipt (e.g., welfare, unemployment or other types of benefits) and the dynamics of these patterns over time.

We are interested in studies on national developments as well as on international patterns. Both micro- and macroeconomic analyses are welcome. The conference shall focus on empirical studies but theoretical contributions are welcome as well.
